Another Railroad to Leadville.

DENVER, October 25. The Red Hill, Fairplay and Leadville railroad company was organized here today, for the purpose of building a railroad from the end of the South Park road to Fairplay and Leadville. It is also proposed to construct a tunnel through Mosquito mountain and a company is organized for this purpose. The capital stock of the two companies companies combined amounts to 12 ½ millions. The tunnel will be two miles and a half in length, and a contract has been let to have it built in a year at a cost of $400,000. The distance by this way from Fairplay is 20 miles, while that by South Park is over 60. The corporators are Governor F. W. Pitkin, Secretary of State U. H. Meldrum, Herman Beckurts, J. E. Cole, A. Hall, J. C. Fuller, Wm. R. Wallace, Gus R. Meyer and O. H. Henry of Colorado, and Julius Cohen, Henry Raske and Mark Bangs of Chicago.

GENERAL NEWS.

End of the Yellow Fever.

MEMPHIS, October 25. The following is the official announcement of the board of health:

Owing to the fallen temperature within the past three days, and there having been two good frosts, with good prospect of the continuation of cool weather, the board of health hereby declare the epidemic of 1879 at an end. It announces that there is but little danger to be apprehended from yellow fever by absentees, or other persons coming into the city. Provided the instructions of September 28th have been complied with regarding ventilation of houses, bedding, clothes, etc. I take this occasion to advise people on their return to avoid the affected places. There are a few cases of yellow fever still in the city yet. Cases may yet be developed, but under ordinary prudence there is no danger of disease now spreading from that source.

By order of the Board of Health,

J. CHANDLER, M. D.

MEMPHIS, October 25. The following telegram sent this afternoon to Hon. A. S. Marks, Governor, Nashville, Tenn.

The epidemic is declared ended this day. Camps are to be broken up Monday morning. I thank your excellency in behalf of the people of Memphis for the material assistance rendered and for further aid promised if necessary. Have sufficient funds to carry us through and will not be compelled to draw on you for any.

New York Canvass.

NEW YORK, October 25. The political canvass in this state is alive as usual in presidential year, and yet there is plentiful lack of enthusiasm on both sides. The Tammany revolt against Robinson grows stronger daily and creates great demoralization among his party friends. Democratic dissatisfaction with the nomination increases as the time advances for the election. Cool-headed democrats privately admit that the state is lost to the democracy and only question is as to Cornell's majority or plurality. Some usually good republicans claim Cornell majority will double that of Foster's in Ohio. They underrate the republican vote against their candidate. There will probably be more scratching of Cornell by the republican in rebuke of machine men.

General Grant Attends a Horse Trot—Rarus Beaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25. This afternoon General Grant attended an exhibition trot goten up for his benefit at the Oakland track. The first trot was between eight third class trotters, who were so evenly matched that the race was rather interesting, though the best time made, 2.28, was slow. Between the heats St. Julian was brought out to beat the best time made by Rarus. St. Julian was followed at a short distance by a running horse. At the word he went under the wire on a square trot and for the entire mile never made a skip nor break, coming in on the unprecedented time of 2-12¾, apparently but a little worse for the magnificent effort. He was driven by Arrin Hickox. The result was received with prolonged cheering, General Grant dropping his hat and making as much noise as any one.

The General returned to San Francisco at 5 o'clock. This evening he attended a grand farewell banquet at the Palace hotel and about midnight will take a special train for Virginia City on the way east.

Samoa Island.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—A communication in regard to affairs at Samoa was received by the secretary of the navy and laid before the cabinet meeting yesterday. It is from Captain R. Chandler, commanding the United States ship Lackawanna. It is dated Apia, Samoa, August 23d last, and concludes as follows:

"On the twenty third of this month the British commissioner, Sir Arthur Gordon, is expected here in one of Her Majesty's ships. As he is just out from England, he may be empowered to annex the Somoan group of islands, or establish a protectorate. If that proves true, I shall protest against the annexation of Pago Pago harbor and land set aside or assigned as Conkling's station, ceded by treaty to United States, and go there if necessary to protect our station. In the future Pago Pago, being in direct line from San Francisco to New Zealand and Australia, will be a very important point, especially if our commerce in these seas increases as it is likely to do, and I would advise most respectfully the immediate establishment of a coaling station there, even if the amount of coal landed there amounts to only a few tons.

Unitah Utes.

OGDEN, UTAH, October 25.—A man arrived at Greenwater this morning, and reports that two hundred horses belonging to Edwards, on Snake River, were stolen by the Indians. Three of Edwards' boys are missing, and the ranch is deserted. The settlers are moving out of Brown's Hole, on Green River. The mail due this evening from the Unitah Agency has not arrived.

Markets.

WOOL.

BOSTON, October 25. The wool market was quiet, active for domestic with more speculative inquiry and prices again advanced 1@2c per pound, the rise being most marked in Michigan fleeces and Kentucky, Missouri and other medium wools. There appears to be no falling off in demand, but holders are unwilling to sell at current rates. The stock of medium wools are very much reduced. Fine fleeces also attracted considerable attention. Pulled wools sustained an advance previously noticed with good demand. Sales comprise Texas fall 30, territory 24@29, scoured 35@68, superfine, and X pulled 35 to 50. Sales of fall California for the week reached 1,146,000 pounds at 18 to 28 and 69,000 pounds spring at 28½ to 37½. There has been quite a movement in English combing and clothing wools. Total sales of domestic for the week were 3,136,200 pounds.

Cleopatra's Needle.

NEW YORK, October 25. The Herald's special from Cairo says the governor of Alexandria yesterday delivered to Lieutenant Commander Gerringe, of the United States Navy, by order of the Khedive of Egypt, the obelisk known as Cleopatra's Needle. The work of removal began yesterday afternoon. The English manufacturers have supplied as stipulated the machinery necessary for transporting the obelisk, and Garringe hopes to get it on board the ship at an early day. It will probably reach America about a month after it leaves the Egyptian soil.

Harvard Boat Race.

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—At Harvard the eight oared race took place to-day two miles straight away. The juniors were successful. Time, of juniors 8:33; seniors 8:38; sophomores 8:55. The seniors included three of the university crew of last year.

New York Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. The stock market opened strong and in early dealings prices advanced ½ to 3¾ per cent., coal shares leading in the improvement, but when the bank statement was public and was regarded as unfavorable there was a reaction of ¼ to 1¼ per cent., the latter Erie. During the evening however the money market assumed a much easier tone and speculation became very strong and buoyant, resulting in a general advance, ranging from ½ to 5¾ per cent., coal shares being the most prominent. The final dealings were at or near the best figures of the day and in some instances of the week. The unfavorable bank statement ceased to have any effect on stocks. It became known that speculation was mainly responsible for the falling off of reserve which was now buying stocks and in that way letting our their money and that the statement is made on rising averages which are likely to be still further augmented next week. The closing of Erie registry throws no new light on Vanderbilt's relations to the new management to be a month hence.

Silver bars 114½; coin ¼ at a discount; money active 5@5½, governments quiet; stocks closed strong; W. U., 103¾; Pacific 34⅞; Mariposa 3; N. Y. C., 126⅛; Erie 41¾; Panama 175; U. P., 90¾; bonds 110; Central Pacific 101½; Leadville 3⅝; Caribou 4½.

The Dead Aeronaut.

ST. LOUIS, October 25. The body found on the shore of lake Michigan near Miller's Station, is identified from description of it in dispatches by Wm. Burr, as the remains of his brother, Geo. Burr, who ascended with Prof. Wise in the balloon Pathfinder, three weeks ago tomorrow. Mr. Burr has telegraphed to have the body properly cared for and left this morning for Miller's Station to bring it home.

FOREIGN.

French Politics.

PARIS, October 25.—Baron King, French representative in Roumelia, has been attacked and robbed by brigands in Macedonia.

Gambetta has returned. The evening papers state that Gambetta is opposed to reopening the amnesty question, and that he declines the responsibility for the utterance of Publique Francaise, but whether Gambetta opposes or supports amnesty the chamber of deputies will certainly reject it. The minister will not need to make it a cabinet question. They have strengthened themselves and have reassured moderate men by recent prosecutions. It seems also quite settled that clause seven of Jules Ferry's education bill will not be made a cabinet question. This cabinet will not fall on two positions which menace it, though if it lives through the coming session of the chambers France will certainly show itself a country of surprises.

English Liberal Demonstration.

LONDON, October 25. At a Liberal demonstration in Manchester yesterday, Lord Hartington, in reply to criticisms upon the supposed attitude of the Liberals regarding foreign affairs, and to the charge that a change in the government would unsettle the present arrangements, said: "The Liberals are aware that international obligations must be respected as long as the circumstances under which they were made remain unchanged, and we have felt from the beginning that one of the worst consequences of our mischievious and misguided foreign policy was that its consequences do not cease immediately with the tenure of power of its authors. We know that the engagements that the government has entered into must be respected, and I dare any one to put his hand on a statement by any responsible leader of the Liberal party to the contrary. We are asked what our policy will be. It is impossible to describe in its details the policy of the future under circumstances of which we can know nothing certain and of which we can only take a forecast. England's policy should not be an imitation of the policy of any other power. There is not a power in Europe excepting England which has not known heroes of foreign invasion in the present century. It is natural that the foreign policy of every other state should be greatly influenced by the dread of a recurrence of such disasters. It is not to be wondered at that other states view with suspicion the policy of every movement of nationalities for disturbing the balance of power, and I say that England which is to a great extent free from apprehensions of this kind, may see unmoved a great deal that passes in Europe which naturally excites suspicion of other nations, but while the heart of our empire is the source of all its power and greatness and by which it enjoys this remarkable, this exceptional security, England is through her many colonial possessions, her Indian possessions, more likely to vital injury of a different character but not less vital than any other state. The prime minister spoke the truth when he said the resources of England were so great that if she went to war she would not have to consider whether she could maintain it for one or for three campaigns. I believe it to be true that England is more prepared than any other power for the first campaign and no minister ought to threaten war or to go to war unless he asks himself the question whether the cause is so obviously just in the eyes of the whole people that they will be ready to make those long continued, protracted sacrifices which would be necessary for the prosecution of war campaigns, nor does it follow from these opinions that the policy of England ought to be one of selfish and timid isolation."

London Times Comments.

LONDON, October 25. The London Times in a leading editorial article says of Lord Hartington's speech at the liberal demonstration at Manchester yesterday: "Lord Hartington cannot be congratulated upon his speech. Neither its general character nor its details are equal to the occasion or to what might be expected of a great party at a critical moment in the political history of the country. Lords Hartington and Salisbury differ respecting certain principles, and the country will not be rid of liberal leaders.

Russian Budget.

ST. PETERSBURG, October 25. The Golois states that in the budget as compared with last year, the revenue was 625,972,000 roubles and ordinary expenditure 600,510,000, besides 408,000,000 for extraordinary war expenses.

Bret Harte Homesick.

VIENNA, October 25. The Free Press says Bret Harte has moved to Dusseldorf, visiting his consular office at Crefeld by rail when necessary. He is very homesick.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

At a cabinet meeting the opinion was unanimous that the interior department should suspend intercourse with the refractory Utes, leaving the war department to deal directly with them. General Sherman says the troops in Southwestern Colorado are ready to move immediately should General Adams fail in his mission.

A special to the Times says a majority of the supreme justices are displeased with Field's dissenting opinion on the validity of the railroad act, which, with the manner of its delivery, is pronounced offensive and disrespectful. It is reported it will lead to the adoption of a rule by the court requiring all future dissenting opinions to be read in the council chamber before being publicly read from the bench.

Mr. Walker, statistician for the produce exchange, after a careful estimate, places the wheat crop of the United States this year at four hundred and twenty five million bushels. The spring wheat crop was overestimated, Minnesota producing only twenty-eight millions. The amount consumed by forty-eight million persons plus the amount required for seed and other purposes is placed at two hundred and fifty million bushels, leaving one hundred and sixty million bushels for export to Europe, and fifteen millions for other parts.

The census superintendent, Francis A. Walker, thinks that the revival of business is general and would have come earlier, but for the miserable financial performances of congress last year. He thinks that the prosperity is likely to continue for several years. The delay of activity after the country was ready for it may account for the extraordinary vigor of the movement at first. He should have preferred to see a more gradual beginning; but there is an assured future for our manufactures, and a grip on the markets of the world that few realize.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The first ice and frost of the season was in many parts of the south Friday night.

The steamer Dora, from Bremen, brought $822,000 in specie to New York yesterday.

Registration in New York Friday was 44,000, making 133,000 so far. One day more remains.

The grand jury at Salt Lake is hard at work on polygamy cases. It is reported that they will have a number of indictments for the next court.

A serious fire took place in Hawkinville, Ga., yesterday. Masonic hall, library and business houses were burned. The loss is $110,000. Insurance $50,000.

How Lieutenant Weir was Killed. Rumors, Etc.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—Secretary Schurz at a late hour to-night received a dispatch from Special Agent Adams dated at the camp at White River, October 24, via Rawlins, October 25. He reports that he visited the camp of the hostiles between the Grand and Gunnison rivers, and that after holding a conference with them the captive women and children were delivered to him without conditions. He then proceeded to General Merritt's camp on White River, where he arrived on the night of October 23d. He informs Secretary Schurz that conferring with General Merritt he will return to the camp of the hostiles and proceed thence to Chief Ouray's home at Los Pinos, where he expects to arrive on the 30th instant, with a view to accomplishing other purposes of his mission, in which he hopes to be equally successful. He adds the expression of great hopefulness that further hostilities may be wholly averted.

HOW LIEUTENANT WEIR WAS KILLED.

General Adams also reports that after leaving the hostile's country he met Indian runners who reported their "look-outs" had a fight on the 20th inst. with a hunting party from Merritt's camp. It was brought about accidentally by the scouts firing on the Indians in which a scout named Hume, Lieutenant Weir and two other whites and two Indians were killed. The Indians claim they were posted at their places merely to observe the movement of the troops. They did not want to fight and did not fight until Hume killed one of their number. In this dispatch reference is made to the dispatch sent to Secretary Schurz from Platte creek on the 21st announcing the rescue of the captive women and children and probably furnishing details of the conference, but that dispatch has not yet been received.

GENERAL ADAMS HONORED.

A dispatch received to night was started from White River yesterday forenoon. Secretary Schurz is very earnest and enthusiastic in his commendation of the intrepidity with which General Adams went among the hostiles to rescue the captives, and the evident skill and good judgment that he has displayed in the conducting of the whole business with which he was entrusted.

From later information from Secretary Schurz it now appears that all the captive women and children were delivered to Special Agent Adams without condition. They had all been well treated by the Indians. Secretary Schurz immediately upon receiving the welcome intelligence conveyed it to the president, and subsequently to General Sherman. All three are earnest in their commendation of the intrepidity of Adams. General Merritt will make no movements until Adams is definitely heard from.

HOYT'S AGENT'S REPORT.

To Commissioner Hoyt:

LOS PINOS, October 25. I arrived here at 2 p. m. Everything is quiet at present. I have had a talk with Ouray and two couriers have just arrived from the hostile camp fifteen miles this side of Grand river, about half way between here and White River agency. Mrs. and Miss Meeker, Mrs. Price and two children are prisoners in Johnson's camp. The courier met General Adams last night one day's march from the hostile camp. Ouray believes the prisoners will be delivered to Adams. At the Thornburg massacre on the 23rd the Indians killed two wounded. After the Thornburg fight the Indians, knowing Merritt's approach, made preparation for a great battle, and were on the eve of an attack when they received orders from Ouray to cease fighting and retire which they obeyed. I will wait here the return of Adams, when the Indians expect to hold a great council, the result of which cannot be foreseen. POLLOCK, Inspector.

REPORT OF SAFETY OF CAPTIVES CONFIRMED.

RAWLINS, October 25.—A courier is just in with dispatches from General Merritt. He reports that General Chas. Adams, United States peace commissioner, came in Merritt's camp on the morning of the 24th with the women and children of the Meeker and Price families. The captives were unharmed and had not been subjected to any insult or injury. The Indians desire peace and claim to have been forced into the outbreak. Terms of surrender have been forwarded to Washington.

Scout P. Moon came into the camp on the 24th. He had been attacked by a dozen Indians and corralled all night, escaping with difficulty. The camp is surrounded by small bands of Indians who are running off horses and lying in wait for stragglers.

The body of the chief of the scouts was found by the cavalry on the twenty-third instant and buried. He had been killed at the time that Lieutenant Weir fell. The body of Lieutenant Weir will arrive in Rawlins about the first of November.

A fight is reported at the old battle ground of Milk Creek between the Utes and the ranchmen. No particulars are received as yet. A pack train with supplies reached Merritt's command on the twenty-second instant. The command is very much in need of all kinds of supplies. Another talk will be held with the Indians in a few days.

JOB WORK

Facilities for Plain and Fancy Job Printing equal to those of any establishment west of the Missouri river.

The Times' effort to turn Schurz' sharp rebuke of Gov. Pitkin is a miserable failure. It is a question of veracity between the governor and General Adams.

The Republican quotes a last year's saying of Ex-Senator Chaffee that "The nomination of Grant is out of the question." This should put a stop to the Chaffee boom.

"Castle Foam," by H. W. French, will be brought out at once by Lee & Shepard. It is said to be a strong dramatic novel, of which the scene is laid in Russia during the brilliant reign of Emperor Alexander.

Senator Conkling declined to stump Ohio for Charles Foster because the latter was not a republican. Alluding to this the Auburn (N. Y.) Advertiser says: "We beg to remark that it looks as if "Charley" Foster were a republican, judging by the number of republicans that voted for him."

SECRETARY STANTON IN 1861.

The article in the November number of the North American Review, "A page of Political Correspondence; Stanton to Buchanan," has made a genuine sensation. The editor of the Review says; "These letters were handed to the editor for publication by a distinguished gentleman, who desires that his name may not for the present be made known, and into whose possession they came indirectly from a collection of private papers left by the late President Buchanan. Of their authenticity no more doubt can be entertained than of the importance of the light which they throw upon that twilight period just preceding the outbreak of the civil war, about which so little has ever been definitely and accurately known, and the interest of which grows in every passing day and month and year.

These letters are particular interesting in connection with "The Diary of a Public Man," which has been published through the last four numbers of the review. They show as the editor says in his introduction that "at the time treated of in these letters and in the diary, neither Mr. Stanton nor the diarist, nor indeed any man, no matter what his opinions or his powers may have been, can have been in possession of all the facts essential to forming a truly just judgment of the men, or a truly wise opinion as to the tendencies of the hour." The views expressed by Stanton will be a genuine surprise to most readers, particularly those which show such contempt for Lincoln and his administration. As a matter of history we might state that Stanton became Buchanan's Attorney General in December, 1860, and remained in office until March 4, 1861. In January, 1862, he became Lincoln's secretaey of war. The letters published were written between March and August, 1861.

The letters show that Stanton had hearty sympathy with Buchanan's administration, instead of being opposed to its cowardly measures, as many have believed. But a few extracts will better show the character of them than any comments. March 24 he writes: "Lincoln will probably, if his administration continues four years, make a change that will affect the constitutional doctrines of the court. The pressure for office continues unabated. Every department is overrun, and by the time that all the patronage is distributed the republican party will be dissolved." April 3 he writes: "The policy of the administration in respect to the seceding states remains in obscurity. The first year of the administration seems to have furnished an ample vindication of your policy, and to have rendered all occasion of other defense needless." April 12 he says: "The general impression is that in less than thirty days Davis will be in possession of Washington."

In the letter of June 11th he speaks thus of the partisan conduct of the administration "And no sooner had the appearance of imminent danger passed away, and the administration recovered from its panic, than a determination became manifest to give a strict party direction, as far as possible, to the great national movement. After a few Democratic appointments, as Butler and Dix, everything else has been exclusively devoted to black republican interests."

The battle of Bull Run greatly stimulates Stanton's disgust at the administration, and he denounces it in the following round terms: "The imbecility of this administration culminated in that catastrophe an irretrievable misfortune and national disgrace never to be forgotten are to be added to the ruin of all peaceful pursuits and national bankruptcy as the result of Lincoln's "running the machine" for five months. * * * It is not unlikely that some change in the War and Navy Departments may take place, but none beyond these two departments until Jefferson Davis turns out the whole concern.

LITERARY NOTES.

Wilkie Collin's new novel will be called "Jezebel's Daughter."

Mr. Phillip Bourke Marston, the author the poem, "The Two Burdens," in the October Harper's Monthly, is blind.

Two numbers (9 and 10) of Mr. Young's bookmaking account of his tour "Around the World with General Grant," are published by the American News company.

Lee & Shepard are publishing an admirable series of boy's books entitled, "Heroes of History." The next volume will contain the life of the famous explorer Magellan, who made the first voyage around the world.

"Tyrol and the Skirt of the Alps," by George E. Waring, Jr., (Harper Brothers), is a collection of articles which have appeared in Harper's Magazine, and which many of the readers of the Magazine will be glad to have in their new form.

Mr. William H. Rideing, the well known writer of magazine articles, was born in England in 1853. He was with Samuel Bowles on the Springfield Republican, served for a time on the Boston Journal, went thence to the New York Tribune, and also became literary correspondent of the Boston Globe.

The International Review for Novembes will contain chapters on "The Use and Abuse of the Pardoning Power," "The Dawn of Better Times," and "M. Victorio Sardou," the distinguished French dramatist. William Everett is writing an article on "Catulus," a Latin poet of consummate genius but little known, for the same Review.

The Philadelphia Times has published another volume of "Recollections of the War," which have been such interesting reading as they appeared weekly though this volune is composed of disconnected sketches by men in very different positions, it is a valuable contribution to the history of the war. All the writers were eye witnesses of the events they describe. Some of the papers are exceedingly graphic, as may be seen from an extract from General, now Senator Gordon, in another column.

Armstrong & Co. have published a revised edition of "Good English," by Edward S. Gould, with an addition of fifty pages upon clerical elocution. The World says, "The author modestly designates his pages as hints upon philology, but his chapter upon the subjunctive mood, so far far from containing only hints, gives stalwart blows at a much misused portion of our lingual mechanism. Mr. Gould seems to have avoided pedantry and to have clothed his specimens and illustrations of an apparently dry subject with not only an interesting but often an amusing style."

Andrew's Latin Lexicon, so well known to all clasical students is supplauted by a revised edition by Charles L. Lewis and Professor Short, of Columbia. Like Andrew's it is founded on Freund's work which was revised after Andrew's work was published. A new English edition was therefore rendered necessary. The new work has many valuable additions to Freund's latest edition. This lexicon will be generally used in England also. Though American scholarship is in some respects inferior to English, yet we are furnishing the standard lexicons in Latin, English and German.

Owing to the large edition, increased size, double frontispieces, etc., of the November numbers of Scribner's Monthly and St. Nicholas, it has been found necessary to appoint the day of issue later than usual. Scribner's Monthly (edition 100,000) will be ready October 22d. It will be "an agricultural number," containing half a dozen papers of the highest interest to farmers and others interested in rural life, besides a portrait and copy of bass-relief of Bayard Taylor, and the beginning of a new serial story by George W. Cable. St. Nicholas, permanently enlarged, printed on heavier paper, with wider margins, and having many special attractions, will be issued on the 25th. New volumes of both magazines are begun with these numbers.

Two book have just been published by A. S. Barnes & Co., which have a peculiar interest at this time on account of the Yorktown celebration. One is a new edition of Niles Register and the other is by General Carrington on "Battles of the American Revolution." The latter book contains thirty-two full-page topographical maps showing the positions occupied by the troops of both armies in all the battles of the revolution, drawn by Col. Carrington after personal visits to the fields themselves and examination of official maps and records in possession of the American, English and French governments. Gen. A. B. Carrington is a graduate of Yale College, had the rank of Brigadier-General during the war, is now senior Colonel, U. S. A., and Professor of Military Science at Wabash College in Indiana.

G. P. Putnam's Sons have just published some valuable books. Among them are "History of Political Economy in Europe," by Professor Blanqui, member of the institute, with an introduction by David R. Wells. This covers an unusually wide range, embracing the economical systems of nations from those of Athens and Sparta to the present time, with digressions on the economic effect of the Crusades, the invention of gunpowder, printing and the systems of the various socialist philosophers; Bayard Taylor's "Studies in German Literature," made up chiefly of Mr. Taylor's lectures at Cornell and elsewhere; Charles Francis Adams, Jr.'s "Notes on Railroad Accidents;" "Midsummer Dreams," by Colonel Latham Strong, whose "Pope o Moonshine" was well received, and last among many others a new novel in the "Knickerbocker Novels" called "A Story of a Disapperance," by Miss Anna K. Green, in whom Messrs. Putnam think they have hit upon the American Wilkie Collins, and for whose first novel, "The Leavenworth Case," they have an unusual and steady demand.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

It is not necessary to be rich, learned or famous to do noble deeds.

The Jesuit College of Stonyhurst, England, built in 1794, is to be reconstructed.

The French government will not allow Methodist ministers to preach to the soldiers.

Pere Hyacinthe has just performed the first marriage ceremony in his new Paris church.

The last days of Hindooism are evidently fast approaching, says the "Hindoo," a native newspaper at Madras, India.

Rev. O. B. Frothingham is said to be likely to return from Europe and resume his work in New York within a year.

Some English ministers use bycicles to make parish calls. The animal eats less and costs less in other ways than a horse.

Out of the total of two hundred and fifteen boys at Phillips academy at Andover, this term, twenty-six are sons of ministers. The Chinese students number eight.

Lord Cairns, the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, holds religious meetings among his neighbors, expounding the scriptures, Lady Cairns plays a melodeon and leads the music.

The Chicago Times thinks that James Parton's programme for a Sunday which will not waste the day in worshipping God is "somewhat stale. It was tried during the French revolution."

The Rev. William Taylor has sent out seven more ministers to reinforce his Methodist conference in India. Mr. Taylor collects the money to support this extensive Methodist mission.

The Lutherans have in the United States about 3,150 ministers, 5,600 congregations, and 725,000 communicants. They are increasing largely from the large German and Scandinavian immigration.

"I will lay me down in peace, and take my rest, for it is Thou, Lord, only that makest me dwell in safety," were the words the choir were chanting as Dr. Yorke, Dean of Westminster, fell dead at the Cathedral door recently.

Twelve French Canadian Catholics have embraced Protestantism, and received into the Baptist church of Waterville, Me. The services on the occasion of the baptism of the converts were conducted in the French language.

Ex-Gov. William Claflin, of Boston, has presented to the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, by Dr. Rest, the deed of the League property adjoining the Claflin University, consisting of thirty-one acres and buildings, valued at $8,000.

The kind of minister not often heard of is the man who leaves a fat place for a poor one, but such there are. Rev. Dr. Tucker resigns a $10,000 pastorate in New York City (New York, N. Y., we should have said) to go to Audover at $3,000 and house rent.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1879.

A Last Scene in the War.

General Gordon, in the Philadelpia Weekly Times, gives the following account of the scenes attending Lee's surrender:

"My men were drawn up in the little town of Appomattox that night. I still had about four thousand men under me, as the army had been divided into two commands and given to General Longstreet and myself. Early on the morning of the 9th I prepared for the assault upon the enemy's line and began the last fighting done in Virginia. My men rushed forward gamely and broke the line of the enemy and captured two pieces of artillery. I was still unable to tell what I was fighting. I did not know whether I was striking infantry or dismounted cavalry. I only know that my men were driving them back, and were getting further and further through. Just then I had a message from General Lee, telling me a flag of truce was in existence, leaving it to my discretion as to what course to pursue. My men were still pushing their way on. I sent at once to hear from Gen. Longstreet, feeling that if he was marching toward me we might still cut through and carry the army forward. I learned that he was about two miles off, with his men faced just opposite from mine, fighting for his life. I thus saw the case was hopeless. The further each of us drove the enemy the further we drifted apart and the more exposed we left our wagon trains and artillery, which we packed between us, and then there would be no army. I therefore determined to send a flag of truce. I called Major Hunter, of my staff, to me and told him that I wanted him to carry a flag of truce forward. He replied:

"General, I have no flag of truce."

"I told him to get one. He replied:

"General, we have no flag of truce in our command.'

"Then said I: 'Then get your handkerchief, put it on a stick and go forward.'

"I have no handkerchief, general.'

"Then borrow one, and go forward with it.'

"He tried, and reported to me that there was no handkerchief in my staff.

"Then, major, use your shirt!'

"You see general, that we all have on flannel shirts.'

"At last I believe we found a man who had a white shirt. He gave it to us and I tore off the back and tail, and rigging this to a stick, Major Hunter went out toward the enemy's lines. I instructed him to simply say to General Sheridan that Gen. Lee had written me that a flag of truce had been sent from his and Grant's headquarters, and that he could act as he thought best on this information. In a few moments he came back with Major of Sheridan's staff. The officer said:

"General Sheridan requested me to present his compliments to you and to demand the unconditional surrender of your army.'

Major you will please return my compliments to General Sheridan and say that I will not surrender.'

"But, General, he will annihilate you.'

"I am perfectly well aware of my situation. I simply gave General Sheridan some information on which he may or may not desire to act.'

"He went back to his lines and in a short time General Sheridan came galloping forward on an immense horse and attended by a very large staff. Just here an incident occurred that came near having a serious ending. As General Sheridan was approaching I noticed one of my sharpshooters drawing his rifle down upon him. I at once called to him: 'Put down your gun, sir, this is a flag of truce!' But he never raised it. He simply settled it to his shoulder and was drawing a bead on Sheridan when I leaned forward and jerked his gun. He struggled with me, but I finally raised it. I then loosened it and he started to aim again. I caught it again, when he turned his stern, white face all broken with grief and streaming with tears up to me, and said: 'Well General, then let him keep on his own side.' The fighting had continued up to this point. Indeed, after the flag of truce, a regiment of my men who had been fighting their way through to where we were, and who did not know of the flag of truce, fired into some of Sheridan's cavalry. This was speedily stopped, however. I showed General Sheridan General Lee's note, and he determined to await events. He dismounted, and I did the same.

"Then, for the first time, the men seemed to understand what it all meant. And then the poor fellows broke down. The men cried like children. Worn, starved and bleeding as they were, they had rather have died than have surrendered. At one word from me they would have hurled themselves on the enemy and have cut their way through or have fallen to a man with their guns in their hands. But I could not permit it. The grand drama had been played to its end. But men are seldom permitted to look upon such a scene as the one presented there. That these men should have wept at surrendering so unequal a fight; at being taken out of this constant carnage and storm; at being sent back to their families; that they should have wept at having their starved and wasted forms lifted out of the jaws of death and placed once more before their hearthstones, was an exhibition of fortitude and patriotism that might set an example for all time."

PERSONAL.

Gortschakoff makes memorandums on his cuffs, a trick he doubtless learned when a boy at school.

Anthony Trollope never lays the plot of a novel in advance, but creates the plan of his story as he writes.

The only son of "Davy" Crockett, Mr. Robert P. Crockett, is a Texas farmer, living near Aranbury. One of his sons is an editor.

The daughter of Stonewall Jackson, now about sixteen years old, has entered the Southern Home School, at Richmond. Last year she studied in Baltimore.

Miss Hooper, of Boston, who has just been married to Edward Balfour, nephew of the Earl of Cawdor, of Scotland, is a step-daughter of the late Charles Sumner.

M. de Lesseps is understood to have faith in the scheme of a Roman Catholic priest, Abbe Meigue, that the relics of the army of Pharaoh can be discovered by excavating underneath the Red Sea.

Tennyson and his eldest son are about to visit Italy.

Sarah Bernhardt says that she will play Shakespeare in her own language, when she visits America, preferring to be heard in good French rather than in poor English.

Ex-Empress Eugenie is believed to have resolved to visit Zululand, in order to explore all the places there which are associated with the last days of the Prince Imperial.

A wedding gift has been presented by the Danish people to Thyra, Duchess of Cumberland. It is a book case of oak, containing 600 volumes of Danish literature.

Since the death of King Victor Emmanuel, her father, Princess Clotilde has lived at the Chateau Moncalieri, near Turin. She is thirty-six years old, and an ascetic. Her husband, Prince Plon Plon, is altogether unlike her in respect to rigidity of life and her sons, Prince Victor and Prince Louis Napoleon, enliven their home while enjoying their vacations. Her only daughter, Maria Letitia, is being trained with the utmost care.

Economy in Type-Setting.

An English newspaper, the Liverpool Daily News, has for a year past used four type-setting and seven distributing machines, at a saving of about $2,000 per annum, as compared with the same amount of work by hand. The compositors working the machine earn better wages than their fellows at the case, while the saving to the establishment is over 30 per cent. The machines are used for every kind of composition except tabulated and display work, the matter being set, spaced and justified with greater accuracy than by hand labor. Each machine costs $750, and the average speed is 6,000 per hour. Ex.

The Stone Building

Opposite the post office in Colorado Springs will be occupied in a few days by

Aiken's Museum,

And will be the headquarters of the different branches of business with which Mr. Aiken is connected.

TAXIDERMY.

As a Naturalist and Taxidermist, Mr. Aiken is favorably known, not only throughout the United States, but in Europe, and specimens of his workmanship are on exhibition in most of the first museums of the country. He will continue, as heretofore, to devote his personal attention to this department, and will keep on hand and for sale a good line of mounted Birds, Stags' heads, &c.

TOURISTS

And all others who desire souvenirs of Colorado will find this the best place to purchase them. A full collection of native minerals, mineral caskets, cut and polished native stones, Indian trinkets, various curiosities, stereoscopic views, &c. &c., will be kept constantly on hand.

FURS.

Special attention will be given to the wants of the trade this season, and a full line of fine coal and mink goods will be kept in stock, as well as the native furs, mats, &c.

The manufacturing and repairing department will be in charge of Mr. John Keller, a practical workman of thirty years' experience and superior skill. We particularly desire to call the attention of ladies having old-fashioned short-waist garments to the fact that Mr. Keller can lengthen and remodel them to the present style so neatly that they will be almost equal to new garments. All parties wishing anything in the way of new goods or repairs are assured that they will be as satisfactorily served, by this house as by any in the country.

☞ Furs tanned and made to order. ☜

Messrs. AIKEN & HUNT

Will also occupy a portion of their building with a stock of sheet music, pianos, organs, and sewing machines, by far the largest and finest that has ever been offered in this city.

If the people of Colorado Springs think that it will be advantageous to have this business a permanancy here, they will doubtless give it all their patronage and good will. Mr. Hunt, who is thoroughly experienced in the business, will give particular attention to tuning and repairing, and warrant all work satisfactory. 10-24-tf

Mr. W. H. Kettlewell has given the front of his butcher shop on Pike's Peak avenue a coat of brilliant vermilion paint.

The school bonds were voted for yesterday and the result was almost unanimous for the bonds. There was only one vote cast against them.

It is interesting to note that in February next there will be five Sundays. This fact occurs but three times in a century. Thus, after 1880, we shall have to wait until 1920 before the shortest month in the year can again boast of five Sundays.

At the time of the college festival a large stone jar was borrowed from William Clark, florist, for use on that occasion. By some mischance it has never been returned to him. It was taken from the grounds and delivered somewhere by somebody, and he will be obliged to any one who knows anything about it if information thereof be left at our office.

Denver and Rio Grande Extensions.

In another column will be seen proposals for grading 126 miles of the Rio Grande line from Conejos to the San Juan river and also for 160,000 ties. The first installment of the $5,000,000 subscription, amounting to $1,000,000, has already been paid in as announced in our dispatches. This will be immediately used, and other installments will be called in as fast as required. The road will be extended immediately to Albuquerque and to some point on the Animas river. The steel rails for over 400 miles of road have been ordered, and the first lot of the order will arrive next month.

Racing at the Fair Grounds.

The races yesterday afternoon at the fair ground attracted a large number of spectators notwithstanding the cold, raw condition of the atmosphere.

The first race was for gentlemen's roadsters, and three horses appeared in answer to the call. Mr. E. Toliver drove his gray Charley, Mr. T. I. Bacon drove his black Bogue, and Mr. A. J. Bletso drove his Black Sam. There was a good deal of excitement over the race and the gray horse was apparently the favorite. Black Sam, however, had backers and went into the race well supported. The first heat was not very exciting for Black Sam soon captured the lead and kept it like a good boy all around, while the gray was a good second. Col. Bacon announced from the judge's stand that the winner's time was 3:23.

While the horses were cooling off for a second heat there was a lively time among those on the quarter stretch. A great many men still were willing to bet their money on the gray, and as confidence had been strengthened on the black there was no lack of takers. The three horses got out in good time and went off for the second heat well together. Black Sam was up to his old trick and took the lead, but broke at the finish of the first quarter, which allowed the gray to pass him. Then there was a cheer from the spectators, which was quickly hushed, for Sam got his feet again before the half was reached, and crawled ahead of the gray, but it seemed as though he could not stand prosperity, and he broke again, allowing the gray a second time to pass. There was a great shout when this happened, but there was a greater one when Sam sobered down and forged ahead on the last quarter, coming in under the wire two lengths in advance of the gray. The time was announced as 3.11.

The race between Wilbur's Colorado and Low's Fountain Bell was called next and the betting was about even. However, when the scoring began and the Bell broke, through nervousness, a number of times before the score was reached the odds were in favor of Colorado. After many trials the horses got off and went around the ring neck and neck to the half mile, when Bell broke badly and thus gave Colorado the lead. The mare trotted part of the way and ran the rest, but was beaten by her opponent. Time, 2:46. The second heat was a repetition of the first, with the exception that it was a little slower, being taken by Colorado in 2:50. At the conclusion of this heat Bell was withdrawn.

The afternoon's sport concluded with a 600 yard dash for the running stake which was won by Black Dan.

FROM RUBY CAMP.

The Indian Scare. A Batch of False Rumors. The Mines.

RUBY CAMP, ELK MT'S, Oct. 18.

From the regular correspondent of the GAZETTE

Our mail carrier from Gunnison to Crested Butte and Gothic, is said to have resigned a week ago. I am inclined to think he did not resign, but like a dutch captain of the militia of Pennsylvania, "just quit." Whether owing to our Indian scare or not, I am unable to say. We are promised our mails again in a few days. I send this to Gunnison by a man who is going down to-morrow.

If the scare had not deprived us of our mails, it has interfered with almost everything else. For two weeks past, little has been done in the mines; no supplies have been brought in for some lengh of time. As I before wrote you, more than one half of our men deemed it necessary to their health and well being to seek a more congenial clime, and left at once on being conviced of this by their imaginations and fears. Most of those who remained spent more time in discussing vague rumors planning imaginary Indian raids and fortifying against them, than to working their mines or fixing themselves comfortably for the winter. Consequently I have little new to say in regard to the mines.

We have had but one scare since my last. This was a report that the Indians had a second and a third time defeated the troops north of the White river agency. This news made some to shake in their boots, and to gather their traps together preparatory to flight, imagining that now having done with the soldiers, the Indians must need trap us next. This, fortunately or unfortunately, was soon superceeded by another report, the burning of Ten Mile. Some of us then tried, and perhaps, succeeded in making it clear to those who were more under the control of fear than reason, that Leadville would be the next place attacked; that they were certainly trying to surround us and cut off all chances of our escape; that it was no longer safe to attempt to cross the range. I do not know that, after all the prepartions for leaving, we lost a man by these last scares.

We learn from a man late from Leadville that the scare even extended along the Arkansas; that settlers there flocked to Alpine for safety. I trust that this was not so, but certainly the sight of able bodied men hastening over the range, and trying to justify their flight by giving their fears as realities, which was no less than that there was not a white man left alive on this side, was enough to excite if not to afright. It was reported as true by some who left this camp, that we were surrounded by Indians, and coming so direct, fourteen of the Leadville troops came to our relief. They now wish to see the man who gave them the report.

The scare is now over for the present. Some dozen or so of those who left us, on getting as far as Jack's cabin concluded it would be safer to go to Gunnison than to attempt to cross the range and run the risk of meeting the Indians on the way. Some of these are now with us again. What induced them to return we can only conjecture. They have little to say.

We have no late news but I trust the scare is over, and that I have now given you the last I have to say on this subject.

Rain commenced falling Monday evening, and continued almost without intermission for twenty hours, when it changed to snow. During the next two days some ten inches of snow fell. Yesterday and to-day were warm and clear, and the snow is fast disappearing under the warm sunshine. This storm has most effectually extinguished the fires in the timber.

The only new strike I have to report is one made by Mr. Christopher, on the creek just above the Milwaukee. It promises to prove one of the richest yet made. Mr. Christopher will work all winter.

The Lead Chief still shows steady improvement as depth is reached.

The Bullion King has been opened some distance above the discovery, and shows up richer than ever. E. C.

Personal.

Ex-Governor Cook is a guest at the National.

Ex-Governor John Evans was in the city yesterday.

Mr. E. R. Cosson and family arrived from St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Cosson has for years past been engaged in reporting proceedings in St. Louis courts. He will continue in the same profession in this state. We were indebted to him for some admirable reports of the railroad case last summer.

Senator James Harlan and wife, of Iowa, arrived in this city yesterday. Senator Harlan has passed nearly twenty years of his life in official positions at Washington. For the last few years he has kept aloof from politics, but during the recent canvass in Iowa he did excellent service and the large republican majority in that state is greatly due to his efforts.

We have received the first number of the Leadville Herald and must express our admiration for its neat appearance, typographically speaking, and for the excellent manner in which its news and editorial departments are prepared. The Herald takes its position at once as a dignified, yet enterprising newspaper, and we greet it as one of our most valuable exchanges.

City Council.

There was a special meeting of the city council last evening which was called for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee upon the flume. There were present at the meeting Alderman Kennedy, Crowell, Lennox, Rogers, and Robbins.

The committee reported through their chairman, Alderman Lennox, to the effect that having examined several plans for a new flume, they had decided to recommend the one prepared by Mr. T. N. Skinner, and also having examined a number of bids for the construction of the new flume, they would recommend the one handed in by Mr. H. B. Snyder, who proposed to do the work for $300.

Mr. Lennox then read a report prepared by Mr. Skinner upon the cause of the breaking of the old flume. The report was necessarially technical in form, but it very plainly indicated that grave faults existed in the plan and construction of the old flume.

The report of the committee and the report of Mr. Skinner were accepted by the council and the committee will now make a contract with Mr. Snyder to build the flume.

Brave Lieutenant Weir.

The subject of the following sketch, which we take from the Cheyenne Sun, has friends in this city who will read with interest what is said concerning this gallant soldier. The Sun says: "The late Lieutenant Weir was a native of Troy, New York, and received an appointment as cadet in the West Point Military Academy early in 1864. He graduated from that institution, with high honors, in 1870, and entered upon active service June 15, of that year, as second lieutenant of the Fifth United States artillery. He remained in this arm of the military force of the government, serving with credit at various military posts, until November 1, 1874, when he was transferred to the ordnance department, taking with him a promotion to a First Lieutenancy. During the past two years he has been in charge of the ordnance stores at Camp Carlin, and was quite well and favorably known, not only among the military, but was held in high esteem in the business and social circles of Cheyenne. When General Merritt started from Cheyenne with his forces to aid Captain Payne and his little band of heroes, Lieutenant Weir gallantly volunteered to accompany the command, and went along despite the entreaties and advice of his friends. Lieutenant Weir was about thirty-two years old at the time of his melancholy death, and throughout his military career conducted himself at post, in society, and on the battle field, in such a manner as to win the praise of all. He had no relative in this section of the country, except a sister who came here about six months ago to visit him, and who now is, we understand, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Davis.
